NITRO BLAST SHAKES LARGE AREA; 2 DEAD

Residents Near DuPont Plant Fear Earthquake; Felt 65 Miles Away.

By The Associated Press

GIBBSTOWN, N. J., Jan. 17—Two men were killed today and a third was injured in a nitroglycerine explosion that wrecked a unit of the DuPont company powder works and shook an area of 20 miles.

A company announcement listed the dead as:

Earl Leslie Harbison, 30, Clayton, N. J.

Edward M. Bundens Jr., 31, Woodbury, N. J.

Although 500 yards away from the blast-torn unit of the Repauno plant of the company here, Raymond Hicks, Gibbstown, was injured by the explosion.

Paul C. Kaiser, general manager of the works, said the extent of Hicks' injuries had not been determined.

Company officials began an investigation to determine the cause. New Jersey state police and the federal bureau of investigation started inquiries — but withheld comment on any possibility of sabotage.

Residents of a half dozen southern New Jersey towns and parts of Philadelphia 12 miles north, crowded sidewalks for half an hour after the mid-morning shock—fearing an earthquake.

Eugene Horan, president of the Red Cross chapter at nearby Woodbury, said he learned children were marched from the Gibbstown school by teachers who thought the shock might have weakened the roof. Pupils were sent home. Teachers said the entire school shook.

Coffee was spilled in restaurants. Windows in nearby homes and factory districts along the Delaware river were shattered. Mourners at a Philadelphia funeral fled from a church thinking the great Frankford arsenal might have exploded. Many in South Philadelphia thought the blast was at the navy yard, at the southern edge of the city.

Most distant report of the shock came from Lakehurst—65 miles away.

A company official said the dead men were in or near the mill unit at the center of the explosion. It was part of what employes term the "N. G. line"—a scattered row of flimsily-constructed buildings where nitroglycerine is mixed.

At least 20 persons have been killed in other explosions here. The most serious explosions damaged the plant in January, May and October of 1916—taking 18 lives.

SHERWOOD ORDERS ATHENS CO. HEARING

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood today ordered Athens county officials to meet with him here tomorrow to discuss the county's relief situation.

Asked to attend were county commissioners, relief director, auditor, treasurer and prosecutor.

"I am not satisfied with the administration of relief there," Sherwood remarked.

Poor aid practices in the county recently were brought to Sherwood's attention after county officials said further relief would be curtailed because of a lack of funds. Sherwood sent auditors to check records and called the meeting after examining their report.

Relief clients accused county officials of "discrimination" in making relief grants and Sherwood agreed to hold an open hearing.

Fred Shafer, Athens county relief director, insisted that he was "in the right" and would defend the administration until the controversy was settled, although previously he had asked to be relieved.

REVEAL SECRET NLRB ORDERS

House Committee Learns of Letter to Examiner in Steel Co. Case.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—The house committee investigating the National Labor board was told today that secret instructions on procedure were sent from Washington to a trial examiner in Kentucky four days before he started hearings in an American Rolling Mill company case.

The committee received testimony that board officials advised George Bokat, the examiner, to be prepared to deny a company motion that the hearing be held in Ashland, Ky., rather than Cattlettsburg.

The C.I.O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee on Dec. 7, 1937, had charged that the company had violated the Wagner act.

Edmund M. Toland, committee counsel, placed in the record a letter from George O. Pratt, chief trial examiner, to Bokat, transmitting a communication from Philip G. Phillips, NLRB regional director at Cincinnati.

Asks Letter Destroyed

Pratt asked Bokat to destroy the Phillips letter and Bokat, called to the committee witness stand, said he did.

Phillips told Pratt that although the hearing had been set for Cattlettsburg, he had refused the company's request for a transfer to Ashland.

"Investigation discloses," Phillips' letter said, "that there is quite likely to be demonstrations and what-have-you of a type similar to those previously run into in company towns, if the hearings were held in Ashland. This I know we do not want to have. I explained to the company that we like to hold our hearings in federal court buildings and did not mention the real reason for my refusal.

"I think you had better tip the trial examiner off as the motion will be renewed before him and the company will tell all about the great convenience that holding the hearing in Ashland will entail. The attorneys for the board will be unable to give the real reasons for objecting."

Says Settlement Blocked

In the course of questioning about his handling of the case Bokat testified that he had "heard" that Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Co., had prevented a settlement of the case.

After saying that a settlement once was reached and that Hook failed to approve it, Bokat declared:

"I don't know to this day what broke the settlement up."

"Do you mean to imply that Mr. Hook prevented a settlement?" Chairman Smith, Democrat of Virginia, of the committee asked.

"Well, that's what I've heard," Bokat replied.

The examiner said that last year a company attorney and he had agreed to a settlement in the protracted controversy between the C.I.O. and the company, but Hook had not signed it.

In a letter dated Aug. 23, 1938, Phillips told Charles Fahy, NLRB general counsel, that although Bokat appeared to be doing a good job he was "almost getting on his knees" with the company in an effort to reach a settlement.

Phillips expressed the opinion that the board should not go to the company "on bended knee" and say, "anything goes."

FOUR DIE IN FIRE

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 17—Four men were burned to death and five injured in a fire which demolished the Salvation Army industrial home today. The dead: Arthur Speed, 47; Al Wilson, 50; Ernest Nevill, 50, and Vernon Melton, about 40.

3 INCHES OF SNOW FALLS; MERCURY AT 8

State, County and City Crews Busy Keeping Roads and Streets Clear.

Marion this morning plowed and shoveled and swept its way out of from under three inches of snow, the heaviest single fall since February of last year, and shivered in the coldest weather since the night of Jan. 8.

The snow, which brought out city, county and state snow plows and trucks early this morning, was general throughout the state, ranging in depth from one to four inches, The Associated Press reported.

Light snow tonight and Thursday and continued cold tonight, Thursday, Friday and Saturday were forecast today for Marion and vicinity by the federal weather bureau.

The entire force of the city service department, augmented by about 40 relief workers, was out on five trucks early this morning, spreading salt and cinders at slippery intersections and shoveling away drifts at street corners.

Road Crews Busy

The county's six snow plows and the state highway department's five snow plows were out early this morning clearing state and county roads. Men in charge said the plows probably would be out throughout the day and that if necessary they would be kept in operation tonight.

Highway conditions in the vicinity of Marion were not regarded as dangerous by the state highway patrol at noon. Although there were spots made slippery by packed ice and snow, most of the highways were clear, it was reported.

All precautions were being taken by municipal, county and state service departments to insure the safety of motorists and pedestrians.

The mercury dropped to eight above zero here during the night, the lowest reading since three above the night of Jan. 8. The drop yesterday was from a maximum of 25 degrees. A year ago today the maximum reading was 35 and the minimum 27.

Over the state early temperatures ranged from seven degrees above zero at Toledo and Fremont to 18 at Cincinnati. It was nine above at Akron, 10 at Cleveland and Youngstown and 13 at Columbus and Dayton.

Some Roads Hazardous

Light snow flurries were general. The state highway department said driving conditions were hazardous in most hilly districts. Plow and cinder crews kept principal highways open.

Transportation slowed in central and northern Ohio cities. Many motorists, who battled the blinding gusts Tuesday, left their cars at home and crowded buses and trolleys in Cleveland and Columbus. Most public conveyances operated behind schedule.

A one-half inch snowfall over night in northeastern counties increased to approximately four inches the depth since late Monday. Columbus reported three inches of snow since 3 p. m. Tuesday. Dayton had a 1.6-inch fall. Cincinnati reported intermittent snows formed a "crazy-quilt" pattern in that area. Overnight snow at Toledo and Akron totaled about one-half inch.

Fire at Struthers

A $25,000 blaze swept a warehouse at Struthers, O., near Youngstown. The structure contained building materials owned by Arthur M. Lyon, a contractor. The U. S. coast guard cutter Tahoma released the ice-locked launch Benefactor near the entrance to the Cuyahoga river at Cleveland.

DOG LICENSE SALE NEARING DEADLINE

Penalty To Be Added to Cost After Saturday.

Dog owners of the city and county were reminded again today that only three more days remain in which 1940 dog registrations can be purchased to escape an added penalty which will be assessed after the Saturday deadline.

This year's sale thus far has been running far behind a year ago, it was reported from the office of County Auditor Harry V. Mounts. A total of 2,342 tags had been issued up to today, 195 less than the 2,537 sold during the corresponding period in 1939. Last year 5,706 tags were sold, indicating that approximately 2,900 dogs are still without 1940 licenses, officials pointed out.

The county auditor's office will be open continuously each day from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. through the remainder of the week to handle an anticipated last minute rush. Staff members will be on hand to issue registrations during the noon hour and until 4 p. m. Saturday. Licenses cost $1 for male dogs, $2 for female dogs, $1 for spayed female dogs and $10 for kennels, with an added penalty of $1 for each license after Jan. 20.

FINNS FIGHTING ON SOVIET SOIL

American Correspondent Visits Troops 5 to 10 Miles Inside Russian Border.

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Writer

WITH THE CENTRAL FINNISH FORCES IN RUSSIA, Jan. 17—Here in the rugged, wooded hills east of Lieksa, the "snowbird" soldiers of Finland are now holding a front five to ten miles within Soviet Russia, guarding two vital highways, 45 miles apart.

By automobile, horse-drawn sled and floundering afoot through deep snow, I visited this front an hour after Finnish skiers had routed a patrol of 60 Russians in the narrow, chilling cold.

In parts of Finland, the cold ranged down to 51 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, making major military operations virtually impossible. It is the severest winter in 25 years.

Thomas F. Hawkins

Only in the skirmish here, where the temperature was 30 below zero, and in a vain Russian attack north of here on the Salla front, was there any action.

On the Salla front, the Finns yesterday were aroused by the stentorian voices of the Red army political commissars, exhorting their troops.

With some of the soldiers shouting "urraa!" about 400 Russians charged, while the commissars yielded encouragement from the trenches.

So intense was the cold that the attackers ran forward with their arms folded for warmth,

New Finn Victory Near

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Jan. 17 — Finnish troops, fighting in sub-zero weather, were reported driving the Russians back in the Salla region, and advancing toward a new victory today.

Today's army communique laconically confined itself to the assertion that "our troops are fighting successfully in the direction of Salla," Finland's eastern border just above the Arctic circle.

RUNAWAY GIRL STOPPED HERE

A 15-year-old Mansfield girl was taken into custody by police here yesterday afternoon a short time after she was reported to have run away from home. A radio message from Mansfield police informing Marion police that the girl probably was on a bus enroute to Detroit resulted in officers taking her off a bus when it stopped here, Police Chief Martin reported. She was taken to the detention home to await the arrival of relatives.

BRITAIN FEARS RAILROAD PLOT

Plan To Sabotage Transportation System Laid to German Agents.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 17—Great Britain's 600,000 railway workers were reported ordered on the alert today for acts of sabotage against the nation's lines.

The vast "detective" system was understood to have been set up as the Daily Mail and Daily Herald reported that a plot by the German intelligence service to cripple the nation's railway network had been discovered.

The Daily Mail said the plot was aimed at public works and bridges. No arrests had been announced. The newspaper declared the conspiracy had been discovered only a few days ago, and that "counter measures" were expected to be put into effect shortly.

Meanwhile, the government was believed to be taking steps to find a place for Leslie Hore-Belisha in the war cabinet.

A move to set up a ministry coordinating all Britain's economic war efforts with Hore-Belisha as its head gained momentum as echoes of his "public hearing" in parliament over dismissal as war minister died away.

The proposed ministry, it was explained, would have a broader scope than the present ministry of economic warfare headed by Ronald Hibbert Cross.

The pro-government press termed the Hore-Belisha resignation a "closed incident," while critical newspapers expressed disappointment that statements by Hore-Belisha and Prime Minister Chamberlain in the house of commons yesterday failed to disclose specific reasons for the change.

Chamberlain's statement that "it may not be long" before Hore-Belisha may serve in another position added to speculation that he might become the economic minister.

Also revived was talk on the appointment of a defense minister in charge of the entire army, navy and air force. First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill has been mentioned for the post.

Six County Boxing Tournaments To Be Held in Area

Winners To Compete Here in Golden Gloves Event in March.

Winners of this year's Golden Gloves tournament in Marion will be sent to the National Amateur Athletic Union tournament in Cincinnati the last of March, it was announced today by the sponsors, the Marion Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Y. M. C. A.

Bob Hicks of the Y staff will act as general chairman.

Marion sponsors have this year been granted permission by the A. A. U. to sponsor boxing tournaments in Delaware, Union, Morrow, Hardin and Knox counties prior to the Marion tournament. A tournament to select Marion county entrants in the Golden Gloves event is also planned, the sponsors said.

According to preliminary plans made last night, the Marion tournament will be held early in March.

Eight winners in the heavyweight, light heavyweight, middleweight, welterweight, lightweight, featherweight, bantamweight and flyweight divisions will be sent to Cincinnati.

Boxing in the Marion tournament will be the winners and runners-up from the five counties and Marion.

Dr. H. R. Finney and Edwin King were named on the judges' committee, R. N. Heininger was named chairman of tickets and finance, and Cloyce O'Brien was named chairman of publicity and posters.

The following county chairmen were named: Union, Earl N. Hale and Edgar Costello; Knox, Mr. Hicks and Jimmy Williams; Delaware, William Bradley and Mr. O'Brien; Marion, Mr. Williams. The Morrow and Hardin county chairmen probably will be named at a meeting of Golden Gloves committees on Jan. 29.

Ohio Democrats Backing Roosevelt for Third Term

Becomes First State To Make Such a Move in Behalf of President.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—Third term backing for President Roosevelt came today from politically-pivotal Ohio's Democrats — the first state organization to make such a move.

Delegates being lined up for the Democratic presidential convention will be required to support Mr. Roosevelt for renomination and be "in accord" with the New Deal, State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach announced here yesterday.

This surprisingly unequivocal stand created intense interest in Washington and other political circles.

While pro-New Deal state organization leaders previously expressed hope the President would seek another term, there had been no indication the delegation would be instructed specifically how to cast Ohio's 52 important votes.

Delegates nominally will be pledged to U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey as a "favorite son" — primarily to meet state election law requirements—but Limbach said that should the first ballot trend go strongly for Mr. Roosevelt Ohio would cast its vote as a unit for him.

Limbach anticipates, however, that President Roosevelt will decline renomination and then will outline a pattern for a successor that will fit only Associate

BUT FOUR FOES STILL TRAILING

Indications Are That Runoff Will Be Necessary To Settle Louisiana Issue.

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17 — Democratic gubernatorial primary returns drifting in from county parishes today whittled down a substantial lead built up in New Orleans yesterday by Governor Earl K. Long, seeking to continue in power the political dynasty founded by his brother, Huey.

It was indicated the combined vote of the four "reform" candidates would make a second primary necessary on Feb. 20. The 12-year-old dictatorship never before has had to go into a runoff election.

In second place, well behind Long, was Sam Jones, Lake Charles attorney, who was being challenged for the runoff position by State Senator James A. Noe, former Long lieutenant who broke with the administration after Huey's death. James H. Morrison, Hammond attorney, was fourth, and Vincent Moseley, Opelousas attorney, fifth.

City Favors Long

The New Orleans vote, expected to favor Long because of the organization headed by Mayor Robert S. Maestri, was tabulated quickly but country precincts counted votes for local officials before the state ticket and returns came in slowly.

The statewide vote at 11 a. m. Marion time, showed that 585 precincts of the 1,703 in the state—this included all but four of the 261 precincts in New Orleans—gave Long 90,905, Jones 80,503, Noe 41,333, Morrison 11,104 and Moseley 2,670.

A total of 320 rural precincts gave Long 22,054, Jones 21,035, Noe 14,430, Morrison 4,500, and Moseley 1,046.

In the city of New Orleans votes in 257 of the 261 precincts were Long 68,011, Jones 14,578, Noe 26,883, Morrison 6,574 and Moseley 631.

Violence, arrests and reports of voting irregularities marked yesterday's voting, the most important in Louisiana since Huey's dictatorship.

Gov. Long fought to retain his seat, maintain in power the [illegible] organization built by his slain brother. Challenging him for the vital nomination were four anti-administration reform candidates.

Rough Campaign

The reform candidates through a rough and tumble campaign pledged an end to "dictatorship, graft and corruption," centered their attacks on the many scandals unearthed by federal agents since the now indicted Richard W. Leche resigned the governorship in June and Lieut. Gov. Long stepped in.

Long denied all knowledge of or part in the proven or alleged graft and corruption which touched many former aids of "The Kingfish." He promised reforms of his own, sought to tie the "big business" tag to his opponents and, above all, appealed to the state's 600,000 electors to preserve the Huey Long kind of rule.

Stormy "Jimmy" Noe was the central figure in three of the most important altercations that Gannett, New York Publisher, Enters Race for Republican Nomination.

By The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 17—A battle for New York's powerful bloc of 92 votes towards the Republican presidential nomination is assured with the candidacy of Publisher Frank Gannett.

Several weeks after Manhattan's District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey entered the race, the Upstate Republican leader, former chairman of the committee to uphold constitutional government, announced he would run at a civic testimonial dinner last night.

"My answer is 'yes,'" Gannett replied to several speakers who urged him to run. "* * * it is a call to duty that no citizen can ignore."

Grass Roots Backing

The publisher's candidacy is backed by a block of upstate "grass roots" Republicans. An avowed opponent of the New Deal, he continued his attack in his address last night declaring:

"The only way to stop them (New Dealers) is to get rid of them."

Gannett announced through the mail today his resignation as the constitutional government committee chairman in favor of former Congressman Samuel B. Pettingill of Indiana, and as a member of the board of directors of The Associated Press.

In Washington, a prediction that the Florida delegation to the Democratic national convention would back President Roosevelt for a third term came from Senator Pepper, Democrat of Florida.

His statement, made soon after an announcement that Ohio delegates would be in the Roosevelt camp if their "favorite son," Senator Donahey, failed to develop strength, kept the capital talking about the draft-Roosevelt movement.

Sees Florida Unanimous

Pepper said he believed that Florida Democrats would elect 14 delegates who were friendly to the President and would support him, or any man of his choice, although they would go to the convention without official instructions.

Senator Pepper told reporters:

"The President will be in a good position to step out at the end of his term. He will have unified his party, and he will have a glorious record behind him. But the shoe is on the country's foot now because of the war in Europe, and I believe that the country will want to draft him for a third term."

At the same time there were reports in the capital that quiet efforts were being made to obtain indirect indorsements of the draft-Roosevelt movement from senators who had not expressed their views.

One such senator, who asked to remain anonymous, said he had received three letters advocating the President be reelected.

HEALTH SEAL SALE NEAR $1,500 GOAL

Only $107 Needed by Feb. 15 To Reach County Quota.

With only $107.87 remaining to reach the goal of $1,500 set this year, final report of the sale of Christmas Health seals in Marion city and county was sent today by the Marion County Anti-Tuberculosis league to the Ohio Public Health association in Columbus, state sponsor of the sale.

Officers of the league said today that since the final report will not be made until Feb. 15, contributions will be accepted until that time.

The first report for the 1939 sale is approximately $200 over the first report made last year, according to Mrs. Walter E. Miley, secretary.

Regular patrons who may have forgotten to purchase the seals in the holiday rush will be mailed "reminder" letters the last of this month.

With more funds on hand the league will be able to do considerably more skin testing and to build up a fund which will be used eventually to hire a full-time [illegible] for the county [illegible] Miss [illegible] today, as the expressed hope that the league would reach its goal was made.

Study Made of 11 Marion Co. Farms To Determine Factors of Success

County Farm Agent's Report Cites Importance of Doing "Usual Thing Unusually Well."

This is the second of a series of four articles based on information from the report listing 1939 activities of the Marion county farm agent's office.

"The most successful farmer is one who does the usual thing unusually well."

This is the message contained in a summary of a farm business analysis of several Marion county farmers, recorded in the last annual report of the late S. L. Anderson, county agricultural agent. The analysis was recommended as a "yard stick" for other farmers.

The survey, made in 1939 from farm security records by Mr. Anderson and Marshall Whisler of the agricultural economics department of Ohio State university, covers 1938 business on 11 farms.

The report showed that five operators realized labor incomes of more than $500 a year and that six were below $500 a year. (Labor income was defined as "Cash receipts less cash expenses plus or minus inventory change with a deduction of four per cent of the investment for interest.")

Comparisons Urged

The report suggests that other farmers wishing to check up on their own operations should compare their farm business with that of the five high-income farms.

The average receipts of the high farms totaled $1,871 for the year and expenses were $1,170. This left a gross difference of $701. The average change in inventory was an increase of $543, which made an average farm income of $1,244. The average interest on the investment in the farm was figured at $377, which was deducted from the farm income, making the net labor income $867.

(Averages for all 11 farms in the survey included: $1,471 in receipts, $962 in expenses, $306 increase in inventory, making farm income $815; investment interest of $341, leaving net labor income of $474).

The high-income farms averaged 145 acres of which 118 were in crops. Capital investment was $9,430. There were an average of 4.9 cows, 49 hens, 45 acres of corn, 17 of oats, 19 of wheat and 18 of hay. There were an average of 1.5 men employed, 1.9 horses and all the farms had tractors.

Average yields per acre on the high-income farms: 46.2 bushels of corn, 35.5 of oats, 21.8 of wheat and 1.5 tons of hay. (Averages for all farms: 40.4 corn, 27.2 oats, 20.3 wheat, 1.5 tons hay).

Livestock Efficiency

Livestock efficiency studies of the high income farms showed that the net increase in productive stock was $875; that the farmer received $1.87 in return for each $1 worth of feed fed.

(For all 11 farms the average net increase in productive stock was $745 and the farmer received back $1.77 for each $1 spent on feed.

Conclusions listed in the survey were:

"If you are a good manager you can increase the effect of your managerial ability by marketing your crops through good livestock. Nearly every record keeper included in this report can well afford to feed more of his feed through good livestock and all can increase their income by improving the quality of livestock kept."

Good livestock farming, the report states, results in five advantages:

1. Year-round employment. 2. Large volume of business. 3. Better maintenance of fertility. 4. Higher return for crops produced. 5. Better incomes.

The larger income farms in the study were those with larger volumes of business and also greater efficiency in crop and livestock production.

Colds in the Clouds

Does high altitude flying have any effect on head colds?

It is a common belief that high altitude flying will make a head cold worse and intensify the symptoms. The mucous membrane in the nose is already congested when a person has a head cold, and it is true that altitude increases the congestion. The sensation of fulness in the ear and deafness due to the lack of equalization of pressure are much worse when there is a head cold which may stop up the lower end of the Eustachian tube and interfere with the escape of air within the middle ear.

Even minute hemorrhages have been found on the surface of the ear drum as a result of flying in high altitudes when the nose is affected.

It has been observed that the baneful effects of high altitude flying may be almost completely neutralized, and full protection afforded, if the human subject is given the advantage of inhalations of helium and oxygen. Helium is a very light gas and has been found beneficial mixed with oxygen in asthma because it can be breathed into the lungs with greater ease than air. Airplane companies are now installing tanks of oxygen and helium in their ships to meet this emergency.

Those who are sensitive to dust and pollen grains are, of course, as is well known, immediately relieved on attaining high altitudes, although studies made by research workers have shown that pollen grains do float at surprisingly great heights.

Another condition which is relieved by attaining a high altitude is a certain type of vacuum headache.

In recognition of the harmful effects of inadequate ventilation and chilling of the body surfaces, conditions which seem to cause head colds, the flight-stewards aboard airplanes are carefully trained to maintain adequate ventilation and to pay particular attention to passengers who are suffering from head colds.

Is white sugar healthier than brown sugar?

If you believe the lay propagandists, you will have an array of ideas which will either prove that white sugar is harmful or that brown sugar is harmful; that white sugar is the only healthy sugar or that brown sugar is the only healthy sugar.

White sugar did not appear upon our tables before the 1890's, when the process of refining sugar was developed. It is said by manufacturers that white sugar is purer than brown sugar. It is said by the advocates of brown sugar that it is natural and, therefore, retains the natural virtues of any food of that kind. Neither statement has any meaning. Both white sugar and brown sugar are of about the same chemical character, the only difference being that brown sugar has certain natural coloring matters that neither help nor hinder its usefulness.

Another piece of propaganda was that brown sugar contained germs that were refined out by the process by which white sugar is obtained.

People, in general, like white sugar better. Before the refining process the people in the United States used about 30 pounds of brown sugar per person per annum. Now the average is more than 150 pounds.

In spite of the fact that it is pleasant, it is not at all harmful.

DOGS RAID FLOCKS IN RICHLAND TWP.

Two Sheep Killers Captured After Loss Reaches $160.

First sheep claims of 1940, for damages totaling $160.75, were reported today by County Dog Warden Elmer Ullom. Two flocks, owned by John F. Dietsch and Roy T. Selter, both of Richland township, were attacked during the last several days, both presumably Friday.

Dogs thought to be responsible for the attacks were destroyed. They were taken into a field with sheep after they were suspected as sheep killers. Both were killed when they attacked a sheep while Warden Ullom and the owner of the dogs, Denzel Whipp of Richland township, had the suspects under observation, it was reported.

Damage to the Dietsch flock amounted to $58.50 and included a ram, valued at $7.50 and five ewes, valued at $35, killed and four other ewes injured. Damage to the injured ewes was fixed at $16.

The Selter claim amounted to $102.25. Eight ewes, three of them registered stock, all valued at $76, were killed and seven ewes were injured. Damage to the injured animals was fixed at $26.25. Appraisals were made by W. W. Knickle and Harley K. Mautz.

The sheep claims were the first filed in Marion county since Nov. 18.

During last week seven dogs were impounded, Warden Ullom reported.

Good Advance Seat Sale Reported for "Tobacco Road" Here Saturday

Edgar Hinton and Eugenia Wilson in a scene from "Tobacco Road."

Advance seat sale for the Saturday performances of "Tobacco Road" at the Palace theater indicate good-sized audiences both matinee and night, Manager George Planck said today.

One block of higher priced seats has been sold out for the night performance but seats are still available ranging in price from the highest to lowest for the night show and there are good seats remaining in all price ranges for the afternoon performance.

Among the towns represented in the reservations are Mansfield, Lima, Ashland, Loudonville, Sycamore, Iberia, Alger, Ontario, Plymouth, Spencerville, Wapakoneta, Shauck, Pandora, Crideriville, McGuffey, Kenton, Shelby, Mt. Gilead, Lucas, Ottawa, Tiro, Sulphur Springs, Ada, Prospect, LaRue, Forest, Cardington, Dunkirk, Painesville, Mt. Victory, Upper Sandusky and Bucyrus.

One person from Pandora in Putnam county has reserved nine top-price seats for the night performance.

John Barton will make his second appearance here in the starring role of "Jeeter Lester." His wife, the former Anne Ashley, is accompanying him on tour and will be at the theater at both performances to assist him with the complicated makeup of the old tenant farmer.

Barton met his wife when he saw her acting with a stock company in Pittsburgh. The romance continued when Miss Ashley joined "The Bowery" company in which Barton was playing and they were married a few months later. For 30 years, under the team name of "Barton and Ashley" they headlined vaudeville bills in this country and in Great Britain.

COLUMBUS LAWYER SPEAKS TO ROTARY

Gives Humorous Talk on "Dogs and the Law."

A dog's life has become more attractive with the passing of time, or at any rate Fido has a better rating in a legal sense than was once the case, according to information conveyed to a Marion audience by Earl F. Morris, Columbus attorney.

Speaking to the Marion Rotary club and guests following the club's weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding, Mr. Morris presented in humorous fashion a history of the legal status of the canine tribe, taking as his subject, "Dogs and the Law."

From early records he quoted court decisions and related incidents showing that dogs were regarded as having no value as possessions, thus exempting owners from any responsibility or liability for damage the dogs might do to persons or property. On the same basis, owners could claim no compensation for anything that might happen to the dogs.

To show how the passing of time and the accompanying progress has remedied this situation, Mr. Morris reviewed legislative enactments and court decisions elevating dogs to a rating of value, concluding with an account of a legal action which resulted in a judgment of approximately $100,000 awarded for the death of Peter the Great, famous dog of motion pictures.

Mr. Morris was introduced to his audience by Rotarian John K. Bartram, Marion attorney who told of the speaker's prominence in State Bar association affairs and his service as a former president of the Columbus Barristers' club.

Eugene B. Willey county sanitarian, was introduced as a new member of the Rotary club.

Visitors were Fred Merriman of Winona, Wis., guest of William B. Tway, and M. L. Kuehnert of Chicago, guest of Wendell Wiant.

Adventurer, Back from Jungles, Tells of "Pinging" Lion With Slingshot

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—For every thing there is to see or do in this world, you might expect some adventurous man or woman already has claimed first honors.

But then you wouldn't have reckoned on Hassoldt Davis, who is back in America boasting that he is the first person who ever drove off hungry jungle lions by popping them in the flanks with a slingshot.

Davis, author and adventurer, had many other exciting experiences with a picture making expedition headed by the Belgian explorer, Armand Denis, and his American wife, Leila Roosevelt, a cousin of the Theodore Roosevelt family.

They traveled half-way up the Burma-Yunnan highway into southern China, which cable dispatches say is the route by which the Chinese are getting a large proportion of their arms and munitions to fight Japan. They covered only half the distance—1,000 miles—with a convoy of 90 munition trucks whose drivers "were underfed, underpaid and crazy with opium."

Forced to Turn Back

"We had to turn back with our three cars because of monsoon rains which washed out bridges and carried many of the trucks over 1,000 foot cliffs," said Davis. "I doubt whether those arms ever got to Yunnan."

In Calcutta the party got a special permit from the Maharajah of Nepal to enter that forbidden country in the Himalayan foothills.

"The only way we could enter was on a narrow trail over two 8,000 foot mountain passes, carried in sedan chairs by natives," he said. "We saw 75 natives carrying a new motor car over the trail for the maharajah, who already owns about 60 cars. The only place they can be used is on a road just 12 miles long."

They were there for an annual festival when "every one of 10,000 officers in the army had to kill an ox as a sacrifice."

"Streets ran with blood and we had to kick carcasses aside to get through the temples," he said. "But it's one time of the year when the poor people get plenty of meat to eat."

The expedition then went to Tanganyika in central Africa where Davis had his novel experience with lions.

"We covered our car with shrubbery and tossed out an antelope carcass to attract the lions so we could photograph them," he said. The gas fumes must have cut off the human scents because the lions litterally mobbed the car—we photoed as many as nine at a time within ten feet of the camera.

"The trouble came when we wanted to quit and save the carcass for another trip—we didn't want to have to kill an antelope every time. But the lions wouldn't run away when we honked the horn and even charged at them with the car.

"Then I tried the slingshot method. When I pipped one on the hindquarters, he turned on his neighbor but after a few shots they got suspicious and ran off."

Must Pay Damages

In the third drunken driving case, property damage resulted to another car involved in a traffic mishap and Judge Hazen sentenced the driver to 30 days in the county jail and suspended the sentence on provision that the defendant pay for the damages to the other car. In that case, there was a fine of $100 and costs and a suspension of driving rights for one year.

In the first reckless driving case to come before Judge Hazen after he took office, he added a one-day jail term and a 15-day suspension of driving rights to the fine. Since then, however, the jail term and driving rights suspension have not been added to the fine.

No Set Rule Likely

Asked whether he planned to mete out jail sentences to drunken drivers in the future, Judge Hazen replied: "I wouldn't want to be quoted on that because I don't believe there will be a definite policy regarding drunken driving sentences. I don't believe that a sentence should injure a person unless it accomplishes some good and for that reason it is almost necessary to handle each case on its own merits."

While the police and state patrol obviously cannot comment officially regarding court sentences, several officers have privately expressed opinions that collection of fines will do much to curb dangerous driving and thus reduce the number of traffic accidents.

"Sometimes a day in jail means only a very small fraction of 24 hours but motorists will be a little more careful if they know they'll have to dig down in their pocketbooks if they break the law," one officer observed.

Range of Penalties

The penalties provided by the state law for driving while intoxicated over a wide range. While no minimum sentence is provided, a defendant may be fined up to $500 and sentenced to as much as six months in the county jail and driving rights may be suspended for any period of time, Judge Hazen pointed out.

In speeding and reckless driving cases, the law provides that the court shall levy a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100 for a first offense, not less than $25 or more than $100 for a second offense and not less than $50 or more than $200 for a third offense. In addition, second offenders may be sentenced to as much as 10 days in jail in addition to the fine and in third offense cases the court is required to add a jail sentences of not less than 10 days or more than 30 days to the fines. On reckless driving charges, driving rights may be suspended for any period up to one year while motorists speeding with a municipality may be sentenced to jail for not more than five days if the court desires.

Congressional Leaders Doubt U. S. Will Give Finns Additional Aid

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Congressional leaders said today there was grave doubt that the legislature would vote further financial aid for besieged Finland.

They reported that a good many members feared additional assistance to the little Baltic republic might involve the United States ultimately in Europe's wars, despite President Roosevelt's contention that the extension of credit at this time would neither constitute nor threaten such involvement.

Mr. Roosevelt put the question up to congress yesterday, with the observation that the "most reasonable" approach seemed to be an increase in the export-import bank's revolving credit fund to enable it to finance exports of American farm surpluses and manufactured products, not including implements of war.

No one, the President said, desired to create precedents which might lead to large credits to nations in Europe.

With the senate in recess today until tomorrow, and the house considering a proposal to slash an appropriation for domestic purposes, the senate banking committee called a closed meeting to discuss the Finnish loan question. Jesse H. Jones, the federal loan administrator, was scheduled to be the first witness.

Chairman Wagner, Democrat of New York, of the banking committee expressed the opinion that there was no chance for passage of a direct loan, such as that proposed in the bill of Senator Brown, Democrat of Michigan, to authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to lend Finland $60,000,000 for the purchase of anything, including arms, anywhere.

The committee also had before it a bill introduced yesterday by Senator King, Democrat of Utah, to authorize a $25,000,000 RFC loan to Finnish purchases if commodities "grown, produced, or manufactured" in the United States.

Wagner said the chances were not so good for this type of legislation either, although the committee would consider thoroughly the President's suggestion for enlarging the capital structure of the export-import bank, which already has granted Finland a $10,000,000 credit.

Adoption of Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion would permit the bank to grant further credits to Finland and South American nations. Under the existing law, the bank cannot have more than $100,000,000 in trade-promotion loans outstanding at any one time.

DELAWARE CO. MILK SURVEY COMPLETED

Study by State Shows Market Outlets for Dairy Herds.

Very few Delaware county milk producers sell their milk directly to consumers, according to a survey of sales outlets conducted in the county by R. W. Sherman of the rural economics department of the Ohio agricultural experiment station at Wooster. The study revealed that milk from 56 per cent of the cows is sold to milk distributors for fluid consumption. Milk from only two per cent of the cows is sold by the producer directly to the consumer.

Milk from an additional 27 per cent of the cows is sold in fluid form to be used for manufacturing purposes and the remaining 15 per cent is sold in the form of sour cream for churning purposes.

The percentages apply to farms with three or more milk cows. Herds whose milk is sold directly to consumers are largest on the average; to distributors, second; to manufacturing plants, third; and for sour cream, lowest.

The study showed the county is one of the most important counties in central Ohio both in total production of milk and sales in fluid form.

Columbus is the most important outlet for milk destined for distributors. There are manufacturing outlets in at least three nearby markets. Most producers selling milk directly to consumers sell in small local markets of the county.

AGNES COLONIA TUFVERSON AND IVAN PODERJAY

Poderjay Faces Freedom; Mystery of Missing U. S. Wife Still Unsolved

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—A dour one-eyed man, whose dashing European and American career ended in one of the strangest mysteries New York police have ever tried to fathom—the disappearance of Agnes Colonia Tufverson Poderjay—is counting the days to Feb. 1.

On that date Ivan Poderjay will be freed from Auburn prison after serving five years for bigamy and will be deported to Jugoslavia.

The fate of the brilliant corporation lawyer he married on Dec. 10, 1933, is as much of a puzzle as it was when Poderjay was snatched from the arms of a French blond in Vienna and brought back to New York.

The once dapper officer who lost his right eye in a fight with another prisoner two years ago, has kept his secret.

Wed First in 1926

Poderjay's marital affairs started Oct. 13, 1926. The bride, Seifka Bradaritch in Belgrade, Jugoslavia, later divorced him, and for a time he was interested in Elli Hansen, daughter of a Danish general.

On March 22, 1933, he married the French blond, Mlle. Suzanne Ferranti. Nine months later he and Miss Tufverson were married in the Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

Apparently his new bride was extremely happy over her marriage to the captain. She had resigned her high salaried job, intent at 43 on their romance. She had shopped in Fifth avenue's best shops for her trousseau, with Poderjay, courteous and debonair, at her side making tactful suggestions.

They planned a European honeymoon and Poderjay sailed Dec. 18, 1933.

His bride vanished and nothing might have been done except for the persistence of four younger sisters of the lawyer-bride who adored her. Edith is now Mrs. Lester L. Rapp of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Amelia, who studied nursing, is Mrs. Ulfred Urban of Detroit. Selma and Olive Tufverson also live in Detroit.

They were happy when Agnes made her brilliant marriage, then a little mystified by her farewell telephone call the night she was suppose to sail for Europe on her honeymoon.

Cablegram from London

They received a cablegram from London, presumably from Agnes—a cablegram which Poderjay later admitted having sent. By this time they were suspicious. Selma and Olive came to New York, prodded the missing persons bureau into action and the investigation was started at once.

Poderjay was picked up in Vienna and told a strange story—Agnes had gone to India. Articles from her trousseau were found in his apartment but it never was established she ever left New York. Selma persuaded the district attorney's office to get an indictment charging perjury because Poderjay had lied in applying for his marriage license, but the Austrian government decided that perjury was not an extraditable offense.

The bigamy charge was then pressed, Poderjay brought back and pleaded guilty.

Hull Aid Warns Against Changes in Trade Program

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Henry F. Grady, assistant secretary of state, declared today that if senate ratification of reciprocal trade treaties were required it would mean "a complete blackout" of executive tariff-making authority.

"Let there be no misunderstanding on this score, and no mincing of words," he told the house ways and means committee, which is conducting hearings on legislation to extend the trade treaty program. "Ratification is tantamount to repeal."

Facing the hostile Republican side of the committee, he took up, item by item, the principal objections to the program, which he administers under Secretary Hull.

Grady condemned "the card-stacking statistical devices to which resort is had to support the false contention that the American farmer has been injured by the trade agreements program."

"Compares Systems"

Presenting a 10,000-word statement and 17 charts and exhibits, he compared the trade agreements method of tariff-making to the "old log-rolling methods," and declared the proposal of critics that the senate pass upon individual trade pacts had "already been tried and found wanting."

Only three reciprocity treaties have ever won congressional approval, he said, while 22 failed of ratification. In contrast, he said, 22 treaties had been reached under the Hull program.

His comments on other criticisms of the act included these:

Constitutionality: "We are wholly confident on the basis of ample precedents which have been established that the act is entirely constitutional."

Democratic procedure: "Surely this procedure is clearly democratic and fundamentally sound. As the problems of government have become more and more complex, there has been a tendency in all democratic governments, including our own, for legislatures to concentrate their attention increasingly upon the determination of policy under broad rules of guidance for its execution, while leaving to the executive agencies the highly complex and technical details of administration. This is what congress has done in the present act."

Cost-of-production formula: Noting the argument that United States tariffs should equalize the prices of American goods with those on goods from countries with lower wages and living standards, Grady said:

"It is of course true that reliable cost data should be taken into full account (but) as the sole basis for tariff adjustment the cost rule is unsound in theory and inapplicable in practice."

Most-favored-nation policy: Discussing the rule under which the United States automatically extends to other nations the tariff concessions it grants any one of them, Grady said:

"A policy of descriminatory treatment leads to retaliation, trade wars, and general anarchy in international commercial relations."

Agriculture: "The trade agreements program has been helping the American farmer"—by increasing his exports and creating more purchasing power for his produce at home by increasing industrial exports.

Labor: "The full regard shown for the protection of American wage levels and working conditions has been reflected in the subsequent improvement of trade in the majority of the affected industries."

Madge Faces Angry Olina Calmly, Promising to Explain "Some Things" to Ease Her Mind.

AT THE SIGHT of Princess Olina's rage-contorted face I braced myself for an unpleasant session. But my anger at the girl fled temporarily as I saw real misery, far more poignant than fury, in her eyes. I forgot for the moment what she was trying to do to Mary, and remembered only her panic. In this moment she was a frightened child, frenzied by the fear of giving up to another the love which was her only tie in her new world of exile.

On one thing I was resolved. Whatever recriminations she might utter to me, I would take no notice of them. I was not dealing with a more or less unscrupulous woman at this moment, but with a frantic child, and I must govern myself accordingly.

Emotion Overcomes Olina

I had had long experience with dealing with adolescent and sometimes hysterical girls, and although Olina was older than my high school pupils, and had been rigidly trained in the school of royal tradition which forbade any show of emotion to outsiders, her poise, which had been sapped by the terrible experiences attendant upon her exile, finally had given way under this last blow. Her frightened frenzy was an emotion with which I often had dealt, notably when girls had failed in studies, or had committed grave breaches of school discipline, faced having reports sent home to their families.

She was facing, or so she imagined, a world in which her mother would be totally lost to her, and it was "distinctly up to me," as Mary would say, to dispel her fears if it possibly could be done.

I knew the psychic effect of silence and perfect calm, so without answering her at first, I stepped past her and closed the door. Then I drew up a low chair facing mine—I also knew the effect which having to look up to another person's face had upon rebellious youth—and I sat down in my own chair before I spoke.

Kindness vs. Hysteria

"Sit down, Olina," I said quietly, looking directly into her eyes.

She clutched at the remnants of her regal poise and tried to pull them together.

"I prefer to stand," she said haughtily, but her voice trembled.

"I am sorry," I said, measuredly, but infusing as much kindness into my voice as I dared in the face of her patently rising hysteria, "but I cannot say anything to you while you are standing, and the frame of mind you are now. If you will sit down and relax both your nerves and your muscles, I think I can dispel many of your doubts."

She glared at me for an instant, and her fingers twitched with the evident impulse to claw.

Tears Replace Fury

"You—you!" she stammered in fury, but I made no reply, simply sat looking steadily at her with what Dicky sometimes teasingly calls my "cowing look," with which he says I reduce Junior and Roderick to dust.

For several seconds which seemed endless the tension between us held fast, and behind my mask of composure I wondered fearfully if the methods which had stood me in good stead so many times were going to fail. And then, just as I was sure that I had come to an impasse, and was wondering what next to do, her temper and obstinacy broke, and fairly throwing herself into the chair, she put her hands over her face and broke into a very passion of sobs.

My course was clear now, a familiar chartered one. For a while I sat still without speaking, letting her "cry her heart out," knowing that she would resent any tenderness or sympathy from me, and knowing also that this outburst of tears would be a great relief to her.

Finally the paroxysm diminished, and when her tearing sobs changed to deep quivering breaths, and with one hand over her eyes, she began to grope for her tiny handkerchief, I rose and put into her fingers one of Dicky's big linen kerchiefs. Then I brought a glass of water to her waited while she wiped and her face.

"Drink this," I said, voice carefully imperso then rest for a minute When you are ready to me, I think I can tell things which may e mind."

Too Much Vice Versa

MOST important part of the revolutionary plot discovered by the bureau of investigation is the fact it didn't come off.

Only slightly less important is the comment of Mayor LaGuardia, in whose city the 17 ringleaders were arrested: "I don't think the United States government is in much danger from 17 guys like these."

The mayor's opinion is typical of the way his countrymen feel about it. Seventeen or 17 hundred or 17 thousand "guys" wouldn't get to first base with a revolutionary movement in the United States.

Unlike the situation in Germany in 1923 when a ludicrous firebrand named Hitler tried to soar to power with a pistol in a Munich beer hall and soared to martyrdom as a political prisoner, instead, there is no common rallying point for a revolutionary surge in the United States. The people are peeved about a lot of things, not just a few big grievances.

Old dealers and new ones are peeved at each other, Republicans don't like Democrats and vice versa, farmers are mad at city slickers and vice versa, A. F. L. men say they're disgusted with C. I. O. men and vice versa, the south has a big grudge against the north and vice versa—in short there's too much vice versa. Any revolutionary who yelps, "Follow me!" has an argument on his hands right away. A lot of other guys—maybe 17 others—are going to yelp right back, "Nope. You follow me." From the standpoint of revolution it's pretty hopeless.

Good News About Taxes

ON THE face of things it would seem that not much pleasure or satisfaction could be derived from contemplation of the money we have paid in taxes. Of course there are the numerous public services we get in return, but not many people give the matter that much thought.

Now Marion county residents have further proof that their tax payments have yielded results of value. It comes in the report of State Treasurer Don H. Ebright listing the increases in sales tax receipts during 1939. The state's total for the year was 16 per cent greater than the amount for 1938, a particularly gratifying development, for sales tax revenue is recognized as an unmistakable indication of business conditions.

If that was a creditable showing for Ohio and reason for felicitation, Marion county has still better cause for rejoicing. The gain here was 20.1 per cent, placing us among the 10 counties having the largest increases in the state.

Yes, it cost us something to win this distinction, but for that we voice no regrets. Instead, we confess to feeling considerably elated over this evidence that business and conditions generally must have been pretty good in our home county during 1939.

"Nerves"

REPORTS of troop concentrations in northwestern Germany threatening the Netherlands and Belgium may mean that Hitler has decided to try to outflank the Maginot line—a strong military possibility. But it may mean something else. There are two sides in the war.

The other possibility is that the allies have decided to try to outflank Germany's Westwall. That would be a momentous decision; it would entail a reversal of military policy; it would change the war of attrition to a war of moving forces.

Each side has been counting heavily on the cumulative effect of delay. With the British and French, this has been a clear policy—to keep Germany mobilized while cutting off its foreign trade in the hope of ultimate revolution inside the country.

It has been a highly specialized war of nerves. But there has been an unexpected result, hinted at between the lines of information from abroad. The nerves of the British and French have been affected. Prime Minister Chamberlain's recent speech warning of imminent danger admittedly was for home consumption.

Perhaps it has become necessary to give the home consumers some action. Germany, perhaps for propaganda effect, suspects the Netherlands and Belgium are allowing themselves to be excited by French and British "excitement." At the same time it must be remembered that in the World war Germany violated Belgium's neutrality on the pretense that France was preparing to use Belgium as an attack base.

News Behind the News

Farley's Arithmetic and John L. Lewis' Predictions Look Dark for Third Term.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Jim Farley, the leading Democratic working-politician except one, sat down among some of his party folks the other day to analyze Mr. Roosevelt's third term chances from a purely technical standpoint—with paper and pencil. He got the wrong answer.

When he sat down he had the opinion (apparently a new one for him) that the President could be reelected if renominated. In counting up the states which Roosevelt could carry, however, he fell somewhat short of a majority of electoral votes. But when he got up he seemed disinclined to let this numerical deficiency alter his judgment. He is reported of his original opinion still.

Paul Mallon

Another figurer with a reputation just short of Farley's is John L. Lewis of C.I.O. Lewis has been working on arithmetic also. He informed some senators he has reached the conclusion it would be impossible for the President to be reelected. That is not the least of the reasons why he has been courting Senator Wheeler for the nomination.

Now this question may seem to outside amateurs to be peering a little too far in the future, but probably will be the controlling factor. Unless Roosevelt thinks he can win, he surely will not try. No matter what he thinks, the party leaders would not want to let him get the nomination unless they were sure.

Prevailing Washington opinion seems to side with the Lewis decision and the Farley arithmetic.

Shadow Over Congress

The shadow of Roosevelt is, nevertheless, lengthening over congress. The house press gallery has been impressed by personal tributes being paid to the President since the session started. Particularly laudatory was the one by Representative Sam Hobbs of Alabama on the defense appropriations. Mr. Hobbs has not been effusive about the New Deal where the press gallery could notice it before.

St. Lawrence Treaty

New St. Lawrence treaty will be ready within a month. Mr. Roosevelt's man Friday-Saturday-and-Sunday, Adolf A. Berle, assistant state secretary, is reported to have made full progress during his Canadian visit.

The rumor is around in high places that Mr. Roosevelt plans to pick up some senatorial votes for it by increasing the Illinois water diversion allowance. The earlier treaty accepted the drainage limit fixed by the supreme court.

Garner Plan

Candidate Garner is cogitating a plan to hold a national nominating primary in every state on the same day. Friends to whom he has talked say he will move to do it if he succeeds to the leadership.

State legislation would be required. Each state would have to bear its own costs. The national committee would furnish the leadership. A day in May could be set.

In this way, the rank and file of the party would gain the privilege of going to the polls and making the choice. If any nominee lacked a majority, the delegates chosen by the national rank and file would make the final selection in convention. A convention would be necessary anyway inorder to adopt a platform.

The present system magnifies the influence of the party office-holders, whereas the Garner proposal would provide a simple, direct way of letting the nominee come from the party as a whole.

Florida Wants Primary

An inside fire brigade doused the attempt to avoid a primary in Florida. The state central committee has decided against letting the Democratic executive committee choose uninstructed delegates. It was a victory for the Garner forces. Most other southern states are likely to follow suit and authorize primaries so delegates can be chosen openly.

West To Be Candidate?

Flashes—Farm bill maker, Marvin Jones, chairman of the house agriculture committee, will get a federal judgeship. He has turned down the federal district bench in the District of Columbia, will get an appellate seat elsewhere . . . Again-out-again presidential friend, Charles West, who has never been able to get a good New Deal job since Ickes took away the one he had, will probably run for congress in the 17th Ohio district . . . The Harrison move for a budget investigation really was offered late, as several appropriation bills were nearly ready for house consideration. The plague of locusts would have been restaged for Washington if an investigation could have released the bugs from the budget. . .

Speak Up, Garner Urges

Wants Would-Be Presidential Candidates To Announce.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Vice President Garner is putting the bee on fellow candidates to follow his example by announcing for the presidential nomination regardless of whether President Roosevelt seeks a third term.

He has suggested to Postmaster General Farley and Senator Wheeler of Montana that if they wish to court the favors of Dame Democracy they ought to give her an opportunity to "cuddle up" without fear they will run if Roosevelt comes into the picture.

Preston Grover

Report has it that only a few minutes before the Jackson day dinner in Washington, Garner twitted Farley about his half and half candidacy and suggested that he address the assembly as "Fellow Candidates."

Farley did exactly that and got a great burst out of the hundred-dollars-a-plate guests. However, Garner people do not accept this little pleasantry on the part of Farley as any indications that he is "all out" for the nomination.

Nor has Wheeler made any statement which even approximately rivals the 48 word statement by which Garner put himself on the dotted line.

Of course, it is not dumb politics for Mr. Garner to try to get more candidates in his corner. Several candidates, taken in the mass, would constitute a solid "stop Roosevelt" bloc.

That would be more soup in Garner's bowl, because at present he is, willy nilly, a "stop Roosevelt" movement all by himself.

Eccles To Senate?

A little sister to the third term mystery is whether Marriner S. Eccles, federal reserve board chairman and inventor of part of the New Deal, will run for the senate in Utah.

Senator King, a foe of much of the New Deal, is up for re-election. Several possible candidates are in the picture. Utah has adopted a general primary since King was nominated last, so it poses a new strategy, both for himself and his opposition.

A constellation of minorities might stop King in a convention, but in a primary it simply would divide the opposition and virtually assure his nomination. That is the picture Eccles sees.

Our information is that he has authorized certain prominent Democrats in Utah to determine whether he can have the field to himself against King. If he can, and further research indicates he has a fair chance to uproot King, he will enter the race, so our informant has it. He won't enter the field just to divide the opposition to King, who has proved himself a formidable candidate in times past.

Reactions in congress indicate that President Roosevelt, the army and the navy have not worked the best possible strategy in seeking more money for naval and army upbuilding. There is far more unannounced opposition to the increased defense program than finds its way into print.

Strategy fumble number one appears to have been the scheme for saddling the defense program with the burden of a special defense tax. Members who were not bold enough to come out in the open and fight a defense program of itself are finding the tax scheme a platform from which to hit at both.

Further, there were samples of wrath at what some members felt was an effort to hide a $4,000,000 appropriation to begin development of Guam as a more useful military base. It didn't show up in the budget. Not until Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations, was testifying before the house naval affairs committee did it pop out.

COLUMBUS, O.—Water under the surface of the ground in Ohio is worth $10,000,000 a year as a natural resource, according to Fred H. Klaer of the U. S. geological survey.

He said here recently that 319 out of 410 public water systems in Ohio depend on ground water as the source of supply for 1,250,000 people.

Klaer, who recently completed a special study of water conditions in Butler and Hamilton counties, said that the water level had decreased as much as 80 feet there during the past half-century. It increased slightly last year, he added.

He said the slight increase may have been due to heavy rains and curtailed industrial activity.

Great Significance Attached to Whatever Decision U. S. Makes on Credit for Finns.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE current news can be read only by keeping before one's eyes the map of Europe as a whole. We see then that there are three points of extreme tension. First, the frontier of Finland on the Karelian Isthmus and in the area between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega; second, the Netherlands-Belgium frontier with Germany between the Ardennes Mountains and the North Sea; third, the region occupied by Hungary, Rumania, and Bulgaria.

Walter Lippmann

There is great tension at these three points because here are the three gateways through which the Nazi-Bolshevist aggression can be extended. The Finns are defending the gateway to the whole Scandinavian world; the Dutch and the Belgians, with the Allies behind them, stand at the gateway of western Europe; the Hungarians and the Rumanians, with Italy, Turkey, and the Allies behind them, hold the gateway to the Danube valley, the Balkans, the eastern Mediterranean and the Near East. If these three gates can be locked and bolted, the war can be limited to the struggle between the Allies and Hitler's Germany; if one or more of these gates is forced by the Nazis or the Bolsheviks or both, the war will engulf the whole of Europe, and may become a world war.

If we look further into the situation at these three gateways, we find that at two of them the small countries involved can count upon the immediate military assistance of great powers. If the Netherlands is attacked by Hitler, the Belgians, reinforced by the military force of France and Britain, will move instantly into the breach. If the Bolsheviks and Nazis strike at southeastern Europe, they will encounter somewhere and somehow the Italians, the Turks and the French army now gathered in Syria under General Weygand.

Much at Stake in Finland

But if the Soviets break through the Finnish defenses, the position will be desperate. For if Russia gets within striking distance of Sweden, the probabilities are at least ten to one that Hitler will send an army through Denmark into Sweden to occupy it before Stalin can get control of the indispensable Swedish iron ores.

The position of Scandinavia is like that of Poland: the victory of one partner in the unholy alliance between Moscow and Berlin will cause the other to move in also, and as in the case of Poland, the Allies can not easily intervene to avert the catastrophe. No doube they would try. But before they could hope to do very much Denmark, Sweden and Norway would be a shambles.

The fact that the Scandinavian countries cannot be reinforced effectively and quickly enough by the Allies, is the reason why it is of such urgent importance that the Finns be given the arms, which they use so well, to hold the gateway. The Finns have demonstrated that they have an excellent strategic frontier. The arrangement of lakes, forests, and railroads is such that not only the whole of Finland but the whole of Scandinavia can be defended on the short Mannerheim line in the Karelian Isthmus and on a front of about sixty miles between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega. If the Finns can stand in these two sectors, the front is too narrow for the Russians to bring into action their immensely superior numbers.

On the other hand, if the Russians get through either of these two narrow entries into Finland, then it is difficult to see where they can be stopped until they reach the Swedish frontier. If they are not stopped before they get to the Swedish frontier, it will be as necessary for Hitler to move into Scandinavia as it was for Stalin to move into Poland. It will then be necessary for the Allies to move in also. For they can never permit Hitler or Stalin to establish naval and air bases in Scandinavia. Upon the successful defense of Finland, therefore, hangs the fate of the three northern neutrals, whether they are to be occupied and pillaged and brutalized like the Poles and the Czechs, and whether they are to become one of the great battlefields of the war.

Need Huge Credits

The Finns have proved their military capacity and their judgment may be relied upon. They tell us that a credit of $60,000,000 will enable them to resist for four months. They must have this credit in the United States because that is the only country where the arms and ammunition they need can be sold to them at once. They can get something, but probably of second quality, from the more or less obsolete stocks in France, Britain, Italy and Spain. But the only place where they can get the kind of superior weapons which their small army must have in order to deal with the terrible mass of the Russian army is from the American factories that are making arms for the American army. The American army is willing to let the Finns take prior delivery on certain of its own orders. It is acting on the very sound theory that the American army is not going to engage in this war, and can, therefore, safely wait a few months for a few hundred guns and the ammunition that goes with these guns.

But these arms cannot be delivered unless the Finns pay cash to the manufacturers, and the Finns cannot pay cash unless the American government gives them credit.

This is the practical issue which is presented to the admin-

I ses look Ethel. I ses in the first place Roosevelts are big people and do not have bother about packing their things up w they move. I ses they have secretaries and lows like that to do it for them. I ses in second place they will not have so much pack because the government furnishes President with everything that goes in a ho istration, the congress and the people. If, by any chance, the decision is against helping the Finns now, congress may be sure of one thing: it will soon be confronted with the same issue but in a much more acute and embarrassing form. For if public sentiment is aroused now to the point where it wishes to see the Finns helped, what will be the state of public opinion if Finland is devastated, its army exterminated, its people starved and enslaved, and then if Denmark, Sweden and Norway are overrun by the Nazis and the Bolsheviks?

If ever there was a case where a stitch in time may save nine, it is the case of Finland today. For, today, the whole catastrophe can still be averted by supplying the Finns with arms; if this is not done, an infinitely more complicated problem, involving both Germany and Russia, will confront the American people.

$258,700 Provided for Operating Costs of County in Appropriations

Increase Includes Payment to State for Care of Feeble Minded; Road Fund $185,000.

Completion and filing of an appropriation resolution for 1940 setting up $258,700.01 for operating expenses was announced today by county commissioners.

Although the appropriations are $36,562.01 over those of last year, the increase is due largely to two items. One is the appropriation of $13,600 to pay obligations due the state for care of feeble-minded and the other represents an anticipated $17,563 in estimated sales tax revenue which was not available for the appropriations schedule in 1939, but which was later apportioned.

The appropriation resolution followed certification by County Auditor Harry V. Mounts of probable revenue for the year. Mr. Mounts certified $258,700.01 for the general operating fund, $185,000 for road funds and $11,234.97 for the dog and kennel fund.

The general fund certification included $152,897 from general property taxes, $49,000 from fees and miscellaneous sources, $1,400 from cigaret taxes, $3,000 from the classified tax, an estimated $17,563 from sales tax, and a balance of $26,000. Two items totaling $8,740 represent transfers to the general fund, one of $5,740 from the road and bridge fund and $3,000 from the dog and kennel fund. The transfer from the road and bridge fund was in compliance with a new law providing that two-thirds of the expenses of the county engineer's office, exclusive of the engineer's salary, be paid from the road and bridge fund.

From General Fund

The general fund appropriations for operating expenses this year total $258,700.01. At the first of last year the operating expense appropriations totaled $222,138, or $36,562.01 less than this year's figure. The increase includes $13,600 appropriated to apply on obligations to the state for the care of feeble-minded, which was not included in last year items, since the state and various Ohio counties just recently reached a settlement of this account.

Other increases include an appropriation of $2,500 to be used as the county's share in a program for administering tuberculin tests of cattle. The tests are conducted every three years. An appropriation of $2,500 for examiners' fees which was not made in 1938 is included in the operating expense account. Still another item makes the appropriation lists for 1939 and 1940 more closely related in total figures. The current list includes $17,563, estimated sales tax revenue, which was not appropriated a year ago because it was not learned until February that the estimated receipts from this source would amount to approximately $16,060.

For Roads and Bridges

The road and bridge fund certification included $60,000 from gasoline tax, $90,000 from automobile fees and a balance of $35,000. The appropriations from the road and bridge funds this year total $185,000, approximately the same as in 1939.

The 1939 appropriations for various county offices and departments with the original 1938 appropriations in parentheses, follow:

General Fund

Commissioners — $7,960 ($8,000); reduced cost of office supplies.
General office expenses — $1,900 ($6,700); insurance was paid from this fund last year, which for 1940 includes only telephone charges and general office supplies.

Club Federation Board Hears Talk by Mt. Gilead Man

ANNOUNCEMENT of the first meeting of the new year for the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs, the naming of a nominating committee for the annual election of officers and a talk on the singing of the Panay by Peres Ziegler of Mt. Gilead were highlights of a meeting of the executive board of the federation yesterday.

Mr. Ziegler, whose experiences in Chinese waters and as a member of the Panay's crew have brought him before a number of clubs and organizations here during the last few months, was presented on the International Relations class program following the board meeting.

Miss Andrey Bolander, program chairman, announced the next program meeting for Tuesday evening, Feb 6, when Mrs. Depew Head of Columbus, will review "The Children of God" by Vardes Fisher. A musical program by an ensemble from Harding High school will precede the review. The meeting will be held at Central Christian church.

Elected as a nominating committee were Mrs J. T. McNamara, chairman, Mrs Lewis Uhl, Mrs. Carl V. Roop, Mrs. W. N. Harder and Mrs. Wendell Wiant. They will present the list of officers at the February meeting.

Mr. Ziegler's accounts of visits to various Chinese cities and villages, the beauty of the mountain passes and the customs of the country provided a definite word picture of the country. In his account of the bombing of the Panay which took place Dec. 11, 1937, Mr. Ziegler told how three Japanese planes, flying low, each dropped a 100-pound bomb. One bomb opened a 14-foot gap in the ship's bow below the waterline, another wrecked one of the ship's heavy guns and a third went through the officers' cabin, seriously damaging the keel.

Mr. Ziegler returned to the United States April 11, 1938, and was discharged from the hospital in December of that year.

Mrs. Mark Baker, International Relations chairman, presented Mr. Ziegler. Mrs. J. A. Lott presided for the board meeting. Both meetings, held in the recreational room of the First Presbyterian church, were preceded by a luncheon.

East Side Kids Get First Look at Opera, and Like It

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Jan. 17—Fourteen round-eyed tenement kids from the East Side got their first look at grand opera last night from inexpensive plush chairs in the ballet parterre boxes of Mrs Vincent Astor and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt

From their vantage point in the famous Diamond Horseshoe" of the Metropolitan Opera House, they watched in squirming excitement—and some puzzlement—as Lily Pons and Giovanni Martinelli sang the French opera, "Lakme

They came for their night out and the gilt and glitter of the other half as guests of Mrs I Fox who rewarded them thusly for writing prize essays on music It cost her $200 to rent the boxes and Vanderbilt boxes.

Fifteen year-old Shirley Belfry, the only one of the seven boys and seven girls who understood French acted as liaison agent between the singers, the plot, and the other children

The fat man (Martinelli) is singing some stuff about love," she said 'I can't understand the lady (Miss Pons)—she has a top-story voice

It's a sad story," she told two little boys who wore a glazed look They both eat muchrooms and die at the end—after a lot more singing '

The children voted the opera "more fun than a movie the first time although one still was waiting hopefully for "some cowboy music when the curtain rang down to stay

Summing up the evening for the group Dorothy Havelka, 14 wrote

I am no judgment of such things but this should take the cake

U. S. AGENCIES TOLD TO LIVE ON INCOME

Budget Director Promises To "Get Tough."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Jan 17 — The budget director Harold D. Smith, warned all federal agencies today to go into training for next year's program of reduced expenditures by living within their appropriations for the current year

He promised to be "plenty tough" on any requests for deficiency appropriations and said that, as far as practicable, he would hold up such requests for extra funds until they could be considered in relation to the general budgetary situation

Last session, there were three omnibus deficiency appropriation acts and several individual ones Not counting relief, which had not received a full year's appropriation, these acts added $373,697,945 onto annual allotments already made by congress

Smith explained that President Roosevelt, in his recent budget message which estimated a net deficit of $3,832 813,641 for the current fiscal year and $2,176,231,570 next year year, unless the latter is reduced by new taxes for 'emergency defense outlays left little room for deficiency appropriations

DEMOCRATS

Justice William O Douglas, youngest member of the United States supreme court

The delegates will be required to sign a pledge reading, 'I am in accord with and will support the New Deal" Limbach said thus virtually assuring Ohio backing for any presidential successor designated by Mr Roosevelt.

Control of the delegation will be kept by Donahey until the organization is ready to cast its unit vote Limbach added However, neither Ohio law nor custom require delegates to support on the convention floor the candidate to whom they are pledged

Limbach plans to head as chairman the 16 delegates-at-large, each with a half vote and 44 district delegates, who will have a full vote each They will be elected in the May 14 primary

Chief Democrat omitted from a tentative list of at-large delegates was former Gov Davey Frequently at odds with the Roosevelt administration during his 1935-38 term, Davey, it was understood failed to get the approval of Senator Donahey

Written sanction must be given in Ohio for delegates' condidacies this being one of the reasons for the "favorite son" method of backing presidential aspirants

G O P Making Plans

Ohio Republicans are expected to announce their convention plans soon They have agreed to support a 'favorite son," U S Sen Robert A Taft, who also has been making a coast-to-coast campaign for convention support

Davey, who lost control of the state Democratic organization when he was defeated by Charles Sawyer for the gubernatorial nomination in 1938, declined comment on the party convention program He said at his home in Kent he may have a statement later

At least two of his supporters, Francis W Poulson, former state chairman and John E Nolan Jefferson county chairman, are expected to gain delegates positions

National Committeeman Sawyer plans to be a district delegate

Almost certain to be on the delegate-at-large list are

Donahey's son-in-law, James W Huffman of Columbus, Mrs Mildred R Jaxter of Cleveland national committeewoman, Robert J Bulkley of Cleveland former U S senator, George White of Marietta, former governor, Mrs Sarah Krusling of Cincinnati, Miss Mary Taylor of Lisbon, Earl H Honefeldt of Ottawa, state central committee chairman, and James A Reynolds of Cleveland

Cox Invited

Former Gov James M Cox of Dayton, the party's presidential candidate 20 years ago, has been invited to be a candidate for delegate-at-large He has declined similar invitations previously

Others on the tentative list include Joseph Hostettler of Cleveland and Dennis F Dunlavey of Ashtabula

Limbach said that "only over my dead body" will Walter F. Heer, Franklin county (Columbus) chairman, be named a delegate-at-large However, Heer may get Donahey's approval and run for district delegate

The state chairman reported that one problem needed to be ironed out, naming of a "second choice" presidential candidate to conform with Ohio law It was understood that no one had been selected on whom there was unanimous agreement.

Limbach's belief that Justice Douglas might be chosen to carry on the Roosevelt New Deal policies was considered significant in view of recent conferences Ohio Democrats, including Sawyer, have had with the President.

Mr Douglas, who was appointed to the court by President Roosevelt, has been mentioned frequently in speculation over Democratic presidential possibilities

Blood Runs Cold

YESTERDAY: Turning down Toby Maugham's final proposal of marriage, Christine Howard lets him go to Bermuda and lets him pick the coldest day since New York's coldest winter to move into a desolate studio apartment on George St.

CHAPTER TWO

Something Wrong

In a few minutes Mr. Kimball hurried up the stairs with a basket of wood. "I'm sorry that I've got only one log and a bit of kindling for you, but I'll have some later," he said and smiled as he saw me sitting glumly on the trunk.

"Oh, this will do very nicely," I told him. "I shan't be staying up late tonight."

"Moving is a depressing business," he remarked, "and you surely got a cold reception."

I denied that with weak politeness as he laid a bed of crumpled papers in the fireplace, lighted it, then put on the kindling. Watching him as he went over the hearth, I though what a good-looking man he was; tall and very spare, with an intelligent face and finely drawn features. His eyes as he turned to talk to me were deep blue which, even with his white hair, made him seem considerably younger than he was. I guess that he was in his sixties.

"I think it will be warmer soon," he said, straightening up. "Drop into the shop this evening if it isn't and I'll see what can be done. I'd li' - to show you my books anyway. You said the other day that you were interested in them. I have a few good ones on art."

I thanked him. His cordiality soothed the rankling ache brought on by Toby's blithe cable.

After he left the fire seemed to lose heart. It burned with a few feeble flames, then the chimney started to smoke so violently that in spite of the cold I had to air the room to keep from choking to death. I went over to a window and as I bent to raise it a noise made me glance outside quickly.

A hand was pressed against the pane.

I stared hard. Then the hand disappeared and I thought: "The smoke must be going to my head."

But I heard a noise again and at first I thought it was only the wind in the branches of the tree, but a shadow on the fire escape, a moving shadow, outlined itself against the glass. Then came a louder noise, a sharp, grating sound.

I stood still, clutching the window casing, too startled to move. Who was outside of my window and why on earth on a stormy night would anyone be climbing around an icy fire escape?

I finally opened the window, but when I peered out cautiously I couldn't see a thing. I bent forward, straining my eyes and finally I spotted a figure down in the yard, close to the house. It was a man, I was certain, in dark clothes and a heavy coat. Then slowly the weighted ladder swung up from the ground and shivered back into place on a level with my window.

It dawned on me suddenly that of course the fire escape didn't drop to the ground until someone descending, pushed it down. So I had not imagined the shadow I had seen was a man outside of my window. I closed it with a bang and sat down suddenly on the trunk. My hands were very unsteady when I lighted a cigarette.

There was something, I decided, definitely wrong with this house. But before I could figure it out I realized I'd either have to go out to dinner or be overcome. The fireplace was still kicking up. With every gust of wind a smothering cloud of smoke poured out of the chimney and the room was blue with it.

In the last hour the light snowfall had turned into a blizzard. I hurried down the street, an icy wind tearing at my coat, trying to find a restaurant. All of the stores were closed for the night, the dilapidated tenements were dark, and the sidewalk stands lay bare of fruit but deep in snow. The whole neighborhood looked as though it had been suddenly deserted. Then on the corner I saw the steamy windows of a Knife and Fork. I could have shouted with joy.

It was gratefully warm in the lunch room. I took off my coat, climbed up to the counter and ordered wheat cakes and sausage and felt more normal. It was a relief to get away from that house.

Those wheat cakes tasted better than any luncheon on Park Avenue and after a second order of them and another cup of coffee I could even think of Toby without bursting into tears. Then I lighted a cigarette and leaned back, thinking that pleasant as it was I still had to go back to the apartment. I don't know exactly what was the matter, but 19 George Street was becoming less and less inviting. It was bound to be cold, and with people crying in the hall, walking overhead when the apartment was presumably empty, and climbing around fire escapes in the dark, there was no telling what might happen next. I felt pretty lonely. It takes a strong character, I thought, to have a career. And then the street door opened with a clatter and a gust of wind and Mr. Kimball's niece came in with a man. They sat down at a small table by the window. He left no particular impression on me except that he seemed awfully young and was wearing a heavy coat and muffler that he didn't take off before I left. Later the Police Sergeant seemed to think this was important, but considering the weather it didn't seem odd to keep a coat on to thaw out. However, the police and I differed on more points than one.

The girl was awfully smart-looking. She was younger than I, in her early twenties, I thought, and she had a beaver coat that I gazed on with a covetous eye. It made my three-year-old seaskin look like an alley cat.

They were sitting so that I could see them in the mirror over the counter. Something certainly was the matter with the girl. Mr. Kimball had said that she wasn't well, but it looked to me as if it were worry and not illness. I was frankly curious so I lighted another cigarette while they ordered. For a few minutes they didn't speak. Then she bent across the table and her voice, though it was very low, carried, and I could hear her quite distinctly.

"What are you going to do?" she asked the man.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"I'm so worried," she said. "She has warned me twice. And if she comes again . . ." She broke off and both of them were silent.

When she continued her voice was shaken. "I tell you, I'm afraid."

I shivered. "This," I told myself, "is no better than a cold apartment."

Locked Door

There was something about the girl's voice aside from what she said that made me uneasy. I put out my cigarette, paid my check and bundled into my coat again, a little ashamed to have listened. Apparently she hadn't recognized me, because I turned and faced them as I went out the door and she looked up at me without speaking.

And then because I was feeling a little better on top of the wheat cakes and coffee, I prowled farther down George Street trying to locate a telegraph office. I found one about three blocks from the house. And in a burst of extravagance and revenge I sent a cable to Toby:

TRY ARSENIC FOR SUNBURN DARLING NEW YORK WEATHER GLORIOUS.

The man behind the counter looked dubious, but I explained to him that it was a joke and he finally accepted it.

When I got back to the house the apartment had thawed out slightly. Mr. Kimball had put more wood on the fire and the chimney was behaving beautifully. So with more energy that I felt I tried to get my furniture arranged.

But by half-past eleven I was tired out and thoroughly depressed. Toby was in Bermuda, yet that didn't seem reason enough for the state I was in. I didn't like the house, but there was nothing definitely wrong with it. After all, just because some idiot chose to climb down the fire escape there was no reason to get in such a turmoil. Yet there was something wrong — something I couldn't put my finger on. The fire had died down—Patrick was apparently still among the missing, because the radiators were cold — and the wind howling around the house crept in every crack. I decided the only thing to do was to go to bed to keep warm.

While I was undressing, the one electric light bulb I had flickered, then went out, leaving the apartment entirely dark. There were no bulbs in the bathroom or kitchen either and I could have screamed with annoyance. On my way to dinner I'd meant to buy more bulbs, but of course I'd forgotten all about it. And there I stood in a pair of panties, in the dark, with no way of making a light. I groped around for my bathrobe and decided to risk bothering Mr. Kimball's niece in the next apartment. She might have an extra bulb I could borrow. Several times during the evening I'd heard knocking at the girl's door, so evidently she was at home.

I opened the door to the hall and there was not light out there either. I peered down the stairway and the lower hall was dark, too. The only illumination in the whole place came from a wan overhead light on the floor above. I said a few choice words under my breath and crept down the hall, and when I stopped in front of the girl's apartment I could hear a window being opened inside. I knocked, thinking that if she'd just gone to bed she would answer. She didn't. I knocked again and this time I leaned close to the door and called to her that all I wanted was to borrow a bulb. There was still no response. Deciding that I'd just imagined the noise, I tried the door carefully. It was locked. Someone was in the partment I was certain. For a moment I waited, but apparently the girl had gone to bed and didn't want to be disturbed. Then I knew that a window was open, because I could feel the cold air on my ankles coming from the space under the door.

Bill Might Try Something to Pull Off the Covers

By The Associated Press

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 16—How often have you gone to bed and said to yourself: "Tomorrow I'll really get up on time!" (but just don't.)

Then witness late-slumbering H. William Richter Jr., Brown university sophomore from Bridgewater, Mass., who overcomes this common weakness with the help of an electric alarm clock and a phonograph.

At 7:30 a. m. the alarm goes off, throwing a switch which starts the phonograph. Then William hears himself tell himself a thing or two:

"Get up Bill, get up."

The recording of Richter's voice begins gently but persuasively.

"Now Bill," it says, "don't give us any of that stuff. No, don't turn over again. You know what will happen if the dean hears about your sleeping through another eight o'clock class." Then it roars: "Do you hear me. Hey, hey, get up."

Obedient and open to conviction, Bill generally does.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring spots affecting the outer or surface layer of the skin often result from a temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing.

You can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment whose medication stays in active contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For nearly 45 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritated oil ducts where many surface pimples start, and aids healing. Carefully cleansing the skin with Resinol Soap helps to quicken the pleasing results. Its gently active lather is refreshing and it rinses easily.

Buy a jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap from any druggist. For free sample, write Resinol, Dept. 89, Baltimore, Md.

MEN WHO AREN'T AFRAID TO GROW OLD

Bob Tuttle had a dream when he first came to work for Standard Oil. He dreamed about ships—big, sturdy square-riggers that sailed to faraway ports—places with strange, musical names. Like most of us who have such dreams, Bob tucked his away—put it in a corner of his memory that some day he would explore and enjoy to its fullest.

Today "Old Bob" is reliving that dream on a Standard Oil pension. As he carves and whittles—paints and refinishes his brave little ship, he can hear the winds whistling through the rigging—can feel the tangy, salty spray whip up over the decks.

And Bob Tuttle will continue to live out those dreams until the day when he finally reaches the last port of call. For "Old Bob," after his years of faithful service to you and to Standard Oil, is enjoying security and comfort with an independent income that Standard's pension plan provides for him.

Yes, at Standard Oil every man is his own "Bob Tuttle"—enjoying life and his daily job—cherishing dreams to come true—not afraid to grow old!

FOR EVERY 100 PEOPLE in the Standard Oil "family," seven are now retired and living on company pensions. And because the retirement age is between 55 and 65, these men have many years of work-free comfort to enjoy. Three men, for example, lived on Standard Oil pensions for 26 years; five others for 24 years; another for 22 years.

253 of our active employees have been with the company for over 25 years, and 1,667 from 10 to 24 years inclusive.

("Bob Tuttle" isn't a real name, but his story is typical of all the Standard Oil men in Ohio now enjoying pensions.)

HARDING PREPARES FOR INVASION OF BUCYRUS CAGERS

Presidents Ready To Make Strong Bid To Regain Prestige in N. C. O.

Marion Harding's cage combine, toppled into third place in the fight to defend the North Central Ohio conference crown, will shoot the works to regain some small measure of prestige when the Bucyrus Redskins visit the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium Friday night.

This week's NCO duels shove the contestants past the half-way mark of the 1940 schedule and as they go hammering into the home stretch, a brilliant Mt. Vernon crew heads the pack. The Mounties very likely will close the first half of their program without a loss, since they will visit Galion, cellar occupants. Shelby encounters Ashland on the A's court to round out the NCO card.

The Marion - Bucyrus battle may be more evenly matched than observers believe. The Bucks have won three of nine starts, only one in the NCO. This week they are looking Marionward without fear after annexing the initial loop win at Shelby 43-40. They feel, and perhaps rightfully so, that 40 points would be too much for the Presidents, since the Bohyermen dropped before Mt. Vernon, 48-30.

Cites Mt. Vernon Games

Coach Alex Kish, helmsman of the foe, contends that if the Bucyrus defense is as good as it was against Mt. Vernon, his proteges have better than an even chance to win. Mt. Vernon players managed to edge Bucyrus by a margin of five points, 33-28, their closest call of the season. The Jackets swarmed over Marion to pile up an 18-point advantage.

Coach Kish has been trying to keep his club in top condition by scrimmaging the juniors against the seniors and the arrangement has brought out some good floorwork in the last two weeks. He uses Michael and Gebhardt at forwards on the junior line-up, Kemery at center and Spurlock and Kanode at guards. The senior roster, the one which has been furnishing the competition for foreign foes in the last pair of tilts, is Rarick and Ross, forwards, Shiffler at center, and Reiff and Hubble at guards.

In the local camp Coach Bohyer's season-long problem of developing an expert pivotman is still unsolved. Last week he used three players, Junior Charles Smith and Seniors Johnny Roberts and Andy Irvine. Smith, who is an inch or two over the six-foot mark, is playing his first season of varsity ball and naturally lacks experience. Roberts, who did a great job of captaining Marion's championship grid squad, hasn't hit his stride on the court and last week at Mt. Vernon saw him foul out of competition.

Reserves To Play

Irvine, who in pre-season ratings was expected to push Mt. Vernon's Jake Givens for the ranking of the league's best center, hasn't yet approached his performance in previous seasons. He was dogged by injuries during the early part of the season, but in recent weeks he hasn't managed to help pull Marion out of the doldrums.

The usual two-game league card will be staged here Friday night, reserve quintets meeting in a 7 p. m. preliminary. Marion is eager to cop the second-string duel since the locals and Bucyrus are deadlocked for second-place in the jayvee standings. Each has won three of four starts to stick close on the heels of Ashland's unbeaten junior varsity.

Whirling Offense Baffles Cage Foes

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

STILLWATER, Okla., Jan. 17—Windmills, cartwheels and merry-go-rounds wear out but the Oklahoma Aggies, who run their basketball foes dizzy with a methodical revolving offense, hope to whirl on forever.

Fourteen teams have faced these cowboy cage artists this season. Kansas solved their whirligig antics in the opener, but since then 13 topnotch clubs have fallen before their surefire attack. Victory over Creighton gave them sole leadership in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Among their victims were such teams as LaSalle of Philadelphia, Loyola of Chicago, City College of New York, Duke, Arkansas, Texas Tech and Oklahoma, co-champion of the Big Six.

Not since 1936 have the Aggies been whipped on their own floor. Their string of home victories stands at 39.

Their offensive maneuvers actually assume a revolving motion. They whip the ball around, moving in a circle until the defense is ripe for cracking. Then at a signal they throw on a set of blocks that would stymie a regiment, shaking a scorer loose for a layup.

They don't take many shots, but they make them count. Their defense is so light that scoring against them is like trying to get an elephant through a revolving door—the openings close too fast.

When they bump into a defense as stout as their own they depend on the tipins of Vern Schwertfeger, 6-foot 6-inch center, or feed the ball to Harvey Slade, a dead shot at 30 feet.

Ringmaster of the cowboy court circus is Henry Payne Iba, 35-year-old Missouri born strategist.

Next for Henry

Next opponent for Henry Armstrong, the welter king, Pedro Montanez, is expected to give Henry quite a battle and is given an even chance to lift the Negro's crown.

Carnegie Coach

Former football star at the University of Pittsburgh and an assistant coach at Carnegie Tech, Dr. Eddie Baker is expected to be named head coach at Carnegie Tech, to succeed Bill Kern, who resigned.

Builders Boost All Star Lead Again; Lions Hold Slim Margin in Office League.

Marion Builders & Supply keglers, went thundering through three rounds against their hottest rivals, Smith Clothing Co., to run their All Star league lead to four full games at the close of Tuesday night matches. The circuit's best counts were Dean's 248 and a 695 series by Steinmetz, garnered on rounds of 213-230-246. Gunder Funeral Home and Dugan Clothes quintets each clubbed the maples for a 1,050 round and the Clothiers went on to amass the best match total of 2,934.

Although they made a clean sweep of the honor totals of the Office league, The Marion Star pin-toppers missed an opportunity to move back into a first place tie with the Lions club by dropping the last of three games to the Terry Provision. Fred Custer paced The Stars with rounds of 213-215-160—588 to boost the club's totals to 898 and 2,470.

SAYS YANKEES NOT SO HOT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 17—The 1927 New York Yankees, in the opinion of Umpire George Pipgras who was one of them, were a better all around team than the 1939 world champions. Furthermore, he said today he believed only two of the 1939 team could have displaced any of the 1927 regulars. They are Joe DiMaggio and Bill Dickey.

ANOTHER IRON MAN

Center Al Benson of Wakefield High school played every minute of the nine games on his team's 1939 football schedule. Wakefield won them all.

Next Opponent for Badger Star Paces Scoring in Big Ten

Englund Gets 51 Points in Four Games.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—There's never a dull moment in the free-for-all battle for individual scoring honors in the Big Ten cage race, a new pace-setter, Wisconsin's Gene Englund, bouncing into the spotlight this week.

Englund, veteran center, came from nowhere to first place with a flurry of baskets in two weekend games. He was not even listed among the first 12 scorers a week ago, but 35 points in his last two games—19 of them against Indiana Monday—boosted him into the top spot with a total of 51 points, 20 field goals and 11 free throws.

A point behind him is Indiana's Paul Armstrong, fifth a week ago with 23 points.

Dick Klein, Northwestern's sophomore center and leader a week ago, accounted for 20 points in two games, sliding to third place with an aggregate of 46 points.

OHIO U. LOSES LEAD FOR STATE HONORS

By The Associated Press

Muskingum tightened its grip on first place in the Ohio conference and Toledo and Miami took over the statewide lead on last night's 13-game Buckeye basketball program.

Toledo, with 14 victories against two defeats, and Miami, with 7 and 1, were idle, but advanced into a percentage tie as Ohio university, the previous leader, dropped its second decision in 11 starts. Ohio Wesleyan upset the Bobcats at Athens, 40 to 35.

The Muskies posted their sixth consecutive league triumph, a 60 to 46 victory over Kent State.

Frank Baumholtz, Bobcat forward who tallied 181 points in the 10 previous contests, was held scoreless from the field by the crack Bishop defense. He made five points on free throws, his lowest total in two years of collegiate play.

Prospect Streeters Knock Baptists Out of Tie for Church League Lead

Epworth Methodists emerged as undisputed leaders of the Sunday school cage league at the close of last night's games at the Y. M. C. A. The Methodists moved into the front spot by the margin of a one-point victory over the defending tilists, combined with an upset win suffered by their most serious rivals.

Epworth eked out a 20-19 triumph over United Brethren, dropping last year's champions to a tie for third place. The upset was a 21-19 victory by Prospect Street Methodist against the previously unbeaten Trinity Baptist combine. After being deadlocked 14-all at the end of the third round, Epworth managed to snatch a tough one from the fire to get a lone point advantage over Brethren dribblers. The Baptists, after commanding a 12-5 half-time lead, faltered in the closing periods to bow before the second division Prospect Streeters.

Wesley moved up the ladder to gain dual occupancy of third place with a 42-25 romp against Oakland Evangelical, while Fite Memorial handed Forest Lawn its fifth straight loss, 32-17. Standings and summaries follow:

LANDIS ACTION SEEN AS AID TO PLAYERS

Judge Holds Illegal Farm Policies Hurt Men.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—Spry, old Kenesaw Mountain Landis still is making spectacular rulings, just as he did 35 years ago when he sat on the federal bench.

Back in 1907 he slapped a breath-taking $29,240,000 fine on the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and this week he shook the baseball world with a ruling that cost Detroit's American league club an estimated half million dollars.

The 71-year-old baseball commissioner made himself the ball player's friend more than ever when he cut loose 91 players owned by Detroit and affiliated minor league clubs Sunday.

He warned club owners and executives that infractions of the rules governing player transactions in the future would lead to heavy fines and banishment from the game of officials responsible.

Landis explained in a supplementary statement yesterday that illegal practices in operations of farms hurt the players.

"The purpose and effect of the farm system," he asserted, "is to 'cold storage' ball players until the major club controlling them sees fit to use them or sell their contracts.

"Instead of being free to advance as rapidly as their ability merits, and to advance to and through any and every club in baseball, players are unjustly restricted to 'grooved' advancement through the one system which controls them and solely as that system may conceive to be in its interests."

Landis said the only reason the penalty wasn't more severe in Detroit's case was that club owners and officials had not been given sufficient warning of the seriousness of the evils.

ADVISORY COUNCIL NAMED AT KENTON

Group To Study Legislative Program for City.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Jan. 17—The Kenton city council today had embarked upon a businesslike voyage for the new year by appointing an advisory cabinet consisting of Mayor E. H. McFarland, Auditor Ralph E. Yauger, Treasurer W. D. Combs, Solicitor A. F. Brindley Jr., President of Council Eli Frost, Finance Chairman LeRoy Hoppe, Service-Safety Director D. M. Anstine and Robert E. Comer, clerk of the board of sinking fund trustees, to recommend needed legislation.

First measure offered to the cabinet for consideration was a suggestion that a full-time auditor-treasurer clerk be employed to keep the fiscal office open at all times during week days, act as clerk to city council and compile immediately an accurate record of city creditors and bills due so that a pro rata payment might be made soon from an $11,770 fund. The money was received in sale of tax deficiency bonds to the sinking fund for the sole purpose of meeting a part of the city's outstanding, unsecured indebtedness.

Council increased pay of the service-safety director from $125 monthly to $140 monthly, raised the pay of the water meter reader from $50 to $75 a month, set the new maximum for city laborers at 60 cents an hour, abolished the post of street commissioner, and enacted legislation looking to collection of assessments from properly owners along Chesney and Wayne streets, recently improved by WPA labor.

F. C. Haudenschild, retiring city treasurer, made a quarterly report revealing that at start of the year there was an ovedraft of $3,492.54 in the general fund; a balance of $3,539.67 in the conservancy fund; and balances of $571.48 in the water construction, $54.76 in the west end sewer, $268.03 in the public library, $2,120.08 in a special lighting fund, $1,785.30 in the waterworks revenue fund, $2,230 in the auto registration fund, and $510.66 in the gasoline tax fund.

Bureau Formed To Study Uses of Farm Waste

By International News Service

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — Missouri has set out to explore the recently developed art of chemurgy for converting waste farm products into useful commodities.

Gov. Floyd C. Stark recently announced creation of the Missouri Farm Chemurgic commission as the first step in applying the new science to agriculture in this state. The commission's job will be to promote development of new industrial uses of Missouri farm products—to bring profits out of waste.

Chemurgy is a word coined only five years ago to denote the chemical processing of agricultural surpluses and crop wastes for industrial purposes.

Noteworthy examples of chemurgy are:

Knitted clothing fabricated from cottage cheese.

Perfumes, paper boxes and window shades made out of corn wastes.

Highways constructed with cotton fabric.

Cosmetics, candles and tobacco pipes made of honey.

Automobile parts from soy beans.

He will retain the office here during the remainder of the year. Crock has appointed Robert Bennett, son of Mayor James P. Bennett, as deputy clerk of courts. Bennett will have charge of the office during the remainder of the year.

Scott Bell, clerk of the Morrow county commissioners, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for clerk of courts.

24 Pictures a Second is a lot of pictures in anybody's motion picture machine. And that's what the theatres of the country today have to "present" for that's the speed at which pictures are made.
And Hollywood Wants Realism
So, a projector capable of showing 24 pictures a second and reproducing them in life-like reality, has been built to HOLLYWOOD STUDIO SPECIFICATIONS — THE BRENKERT.
Your Palace is the first theatre in Ohio to install this equipment—in fact, one of the first of two score theatres in the country to be so equipped.
Seeing Is Believing
and you'll scarcely believe your eyes for the Brenkert has given a third dimensional life-like quality to pictures.
SEE IT AT THE PALACE
and you'll SEE a presentation unsurpassed anywhere!
The first programs featuring the new RCA sound and Brenkert projection are:
Sun.-Mon.-Tues. Jan. 21-23 DEANNA DURBIN in "FIRST LOVE"
Wed. only Jan. 24 "Two Thoroughbreds" and the Philharmonic offering "Merry Wives of Windsor"
Thurs.-Fri. Jan. 25-26 NELSON EDDY in 'Balalaika' with Ilona Massey

"STEAL...KILL...BUT GET ME MY GOLD!"
Charles Laughton as that gentlemanly devil in human form, Sir Humphrey Pengallan, leader of the cutthroat racketeers of the Cornish Coast.

FEW STOCKS SHOW GAINS

List Fails To Follow Any General Trend; Various Explanations Given.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Traders sought a few selected issues in today's stock market but the list was pretty well mixed.

There was little steam up from the quiet opening on.

Brokers blamed the failure to move one way or another on "technical" reasons, which means buyers, looking at the position of prices, don't want to extend themselves and sellers were holding onto their equities, at least at this stage of the game.

Possibility of government aid to Finland was still regarded in some quarters as increasing the chance of American involvement in Europe's hostilities, while others gave that little thought and concentrated on the continuation of good business at home.

Foreign markets were irregular. Bonds were uneven and commodities mixed.

Estimates that retail sales of automobiles in the first 10 days of January were 26.8 per cent ahead of the 1939 comparative led some analysts to the thought there might be a further extension of the uptrend which started more than a year ago.

Not so optimistic was the declaration of "Iron Age" that the high productive rate of the steel industry was largely at the expense of backlogs which "continue to decline in face of the fact that new business has not snapped back from the dip it took at the end of last year and is now averaging about 50 per cent of shipments, with some producers doing as well as 60 per cent and some no better than 40 per cent."

Boston Wool

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Jan. 17—A fairly active demand was received today for south African and South American wools Canadian buyers were reported to have taken sizeable amounts of cross-bred South American wools out of this market. Domestic wools were receiving very little demand because users were able to cover requirements satisfactorily from foreign wools quoted relatively lower than prices asked on domestic wools.

PROBATE JUDGES HOLD CONVENTION

Probate Judge Oscar Gast is in Columbus attending the annual state convention of Ohio probate and juvenile judges. Sessions opened yesterday and will continue through Thursday.

D. K. Larrimer, inheritance tax attorney for the state, yesterday told the judges' association that tax revenues probably could be raised if courts furnished the department with revised estimates of costs in final stages of settling estates. Original estimates, he said, made soon after death occurs frequently are high.

Judge Gast, serving in both capacities for Marion county, will remain in Columbus for a special meeting of the juvenile section tomorrow.

LEGAL NOTICE

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, MARION COUNTY, OHIO
Elmer Cox, Plaintiff, vs. F. H. Wilson Lawndale, California Defendant

H. Wilson in the following described premises to-wit:

Situate in the County of Marion, Township of Tully, and State of Ohio, and bounded and described as follows:

Being the Southeast quarter (¼) of Section No. 28, Township Number 4, and Range Number 17, and the South one-half of fractional section 25, Township 4, and Range 17, excepting from the two above described tracts the following tracts, (a) being (one) (40) acres out of the West side of the first above described tract and being the premises formerly sold to Sarah E Noble

(b) A parcel of land situate in the Southeast quarter of Section 26 Township 4, and Rang 17, and described as follows. Commencing 14.60 perches East of the quarter section post on the South side of said section township, and range aforesaid, and running thence North 60 degrees East 26.8 perches, thence South 15.88 perches to the aforesaid line; thence on said section line to the place of beginning, containing 1.55 acres of land

(c) Being part of the Southeast quarter of Section 25, Township 4, and Range 17, and beginning at the center of the State Road on the West side of said quarter section; running South 22 rods; thence East 48 rods; thence North parallel with the West line 57 rods and twelve (12) feet, thence back to the place of beginning, containing twelve (12) acres, be the same more or less

(d) Beginning at the Southeast corner said fractional Section 25 on the Range and County line; thence running North 4 degrees East along said line 70.20 poles to the south end of the bridge over the middle branch of Whetstone Creek where it intersects said Range line, thence south 64 degrees West 52.10 poles to black walnut tree 15 inches in diameter, which is made a corner; thence South 24½ degrees West 26.76 poles to a post on the south line of said Section 26, thence South 89 degrees 15 minutes East along the South line of said Section 26 and 25 to the place of beginning, containing 24.43 acres of land, according to plat and survey made by J. T. Buck, June 5th, 1840, and containing in the premises hereby conveyed one hundred and thirty-one and fifty-one one-hundredths (131.51) acres of land.

The above exceptions containing in all seventy-eight and 43/100 (78.43) acres of land, and leaving to be transferred herein one hundred and sixteen and seventy-five one-hundredths (116.75) acres of land, be the same more or less.

2 CANDIDATES ENTER COUNTY OFFICE RACES

Democrats Announce for Court Clerk and Representative.

Samuel Almendinger of Prospect today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination as county representative to the state legislature and Carl F. Haberman of 637 Davids street announced his intention of seeking re-nomination to the post of county clerk of courts, also on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Almendinger, 62, is seeking his second term as county representative. He served in that capacity in 1937-38 and during that time was a member of committees on banks and banking, education and agriculture.

He formerly taught school, for 14 years was on the Prospect board of education and for 18 years on the county board. He was a director of the Prospect Citizens' Bank several years and for 13 years was in retail business. He has been in sales work for the last 22 years with a banking supply company. Mr. Almendinger is married and has three children.

Mr. Haberman before coming to Marion to make his home operated a farm in Green Camp township. For several years he taught school in his home community. He is seeking re-election to the post of clerk of courts, having begun a four-year term in 1936.

WHEAT PRICES UP DESPITE SELLING

CHICAGO, Jan 17—Overcoming frequent outbursts of selling, wheat prices today struck a strong upward course which in the final hour lifted quotations 2 cents a bushel or more to the best level in almost a week.

Buying came from houses with eastern and southwestern connections and may have originated with mills or crash grain handlers, pit brokers said. There was evidence of some reinstatement of lines sold out recently possibly because of hope of enlarged domestic demand in the near future. The cold wave may retard country wheat movement, grain men said.

Wheat closed 1⅜-2¼ higher than yesterday, May $1.01-1 01⅜, July 98⅞-⅞; corn ⅛-⅜ up, May 58⅛-1¼, July 58⅝; oats ⅜-½ higher.
